Import or export favorites in Internet Explorer

Favorites, also known as bookmarks, are a convenient way to organize and find webpages that you visit frequently. If you use Internet Explorer on several computers, you can save your favorites from one computer and then import that list to another computer.

Follow these steps on the computer that you're exporting your favorites from.

- 1. Open Internet Explorer.
- Click the ¹Favorites button, click the arrow next to the ²Add to Favorites button, and then click ³Import and Export.

3. In the Import/Export Settings dialog box, click Export to a file, and then click Next.

4. Select the Favorites check box, and then click Next.

5. Select the folder that you want to export your favorites from, and then click Next.

6. By default, Internet Explorer creates a file called bookmark.htm in your Documents folder. If you want to use a name other than bookmark.htm or to store the exported favorites in a folder other than Documents, specify the new file and folder name. If you want to be able to access the file on a different computer you should save it to your network work folder by by clicking Browse, then click Network Drive. In the example the filename was changed to refelect the date the file was created. Click Save and file name will appear in the box.
